SILVER PRICES TO GO HIGHER

SLIGHT ADVANCE IN DOLLAR

U.S. EMBARGO ON EXPORTS

HEAVY BUYING IN LONDON

Although the Hongkong dollar advanced a further 1/8th this morning to 1s. 5½d, it continues to lag behind silver parity, the difference being further accentuated by the marked rise in silver prices both in London and New York.

The local market is steady, the tone being unchanged from yesterday, and inter-bank business has been done at 1s. 5½d. The rate should be much higher, according to certain local bankers.

HIGHER PRICES EXPECTED.

New York, June 29.
The opinion of some traders here as to the effect of the new embargo on silver exports is that it will probably result in an advance on the London and New York markets, but probably more so in London than in New York. American buying was largely responsible for today's rise in London silver prices.—United Press.

THE EMBARGO.
Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Co., of New York, for whom the American Oriental Finance Corporation are the local correspondents, report on yesterday's silver market as follows:—"The market was firm early in the day, but later eased, partially under July liquidation, which was apparently promoted by the issuance of 604 tenders. Prices later advanced to new high levels on aggressive Commission house buying of distant positions. The Government bought for July.

"Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury has issued an order placing an embargo on the exports of silver, unless a special license is issued, except those exports of the metal for legitimate purposes. He explained that the new silver export embargo was not intended to check the normal legitimate business flow of silver exports and that any bank or business concern can make application to the Federal Reserve Bank and obtain virtually an instantaneous 'Yes' or 'No' answer as to permission to export under the license.

Messrs. White, Weld and Co., New York correspondents for Messrs. S. R. Levy and Co., report that the silver market is firm, and it looks as if prices will work higher.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Agency, 1934. Received June 30, 9.15 a.m.)

London, June 29.
Revelations suggesting that extensive smuggling of tobacco has been going on between the Continent and the British Isles for some time were made during a sensational case at Portsmouth today.

A record fine, aggregating £75,000, or alternatively, six months' imprisonment with hard labour, in default, was imposed upon each of two men who appeared in Portsmouth Police Court today, charged with smuggling a large quantity of tobacco.

One of the accused was a cigarette maker, manufacturer of certain exclusive brands. The other was a master mariner.

London, June 29.

England's hope in the coming races for the America's Cup, Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, suffered an unexpected defeat in a trial spin today.

Racing at Falmouth, in a competition over a thirty-mile course, which is practically the distance of the America's Cup races, the British challenger, Endeavour, was beaten on time allowance by Astra.

His Majesty's Britannia occupied third place.

Mr. Sopwith is not, however, disappointed in his magnificent craft. The defeat of Endeavour is attributed by observers to her having taken an excessive reach. The showing of the craft in other races and trial spins down the English Channel have proved entirely satisfactory and there is little doubt that Endeavour is the finest racing craft turned out in recent years.—Reuter Special.

DOG MUZZLING IN TERRITORIES

PRELUDE TO CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

TEXT OF REVISED REGULATIONS

TIGHTENED UP ORDER

In order to deal with the rabies outbreak at its source, the Government is now extending the regulations regarding licensing of dogs, as well as the muzzling provisions, to the mainland areas of the New Territories. This step is announced in revised regulations appearing in the current issue of the "Gazette."

The old Regulation No. 1 is now rescinded and replaced by a new one, the effect of which is to extend the licensing of dogs to the mainland portion of the New Territories, which was excluded under the old regulation.

A second amendment rescinds the old Regulation No. 21 and replaces it by a new one which in effect extends the application of the provisions commonly known as the muzzling order to that part of the mainland portion of the New Territories which was excluded by the rescinded regulation and exempts sporting dogs in specified circumstances.

NO REGULATION SUSPENDED.

It is intimated that at the present time no regulation is suspended. The principal regulations, as now amended, are all in force.

The new Regulation No. 1 reads as follows:

1. No person shall keep a dog over the age of three months, except under and in accordance with a licence from the Inspector General of Police: Provided that this regulation shall not apply to any dog kept in any dog home approved or authorized by or under these regulations, or to any dog kept in the non-mainland areas of the New Territories.

MUZZLING ORDER.

The new form of Regulation No. 21 is as follows:

21.—(1) The provisions contained in paragraph (2) of this regulation shall not apply to the non-mainland areas of the New Territories, nor shall such provisions apply to any sporting dog when actually working under the charge of the holder of a game licence.

(2) No dog shall be allowed to go abroad in the public thoroughfares or elsewhere unless it is either muzzled or on the lead, and any dog found abroad in the public thoroughfares or elsewhere which is neither muzzled nor on the lead may be captured and detained, or may be shot or otherwise destroyed, by any police officer or by any person authorized by the Inspector General of Police. The owner of any dog so found shall be deemed to have allowed such dog to go abroad neither muzzled nor on the lead and to have contravened the provisions of this regulation. The owner of any dog which bites any person, or any other dog, at a time when and place at which it is required by this regulation to be muzzled or on the lead, shall be liable to a fine of not more than £50.—(Continued on Page 7.)

HITLER THE PACIFIER

CABINET SAFE THROUGH INTERNAL CRISIS

BERLIN FULL OF RUMOURS

Berlin, June 29.

The Hitler Cabinet is believed to have emerged successfully from the stormiest week in its career.

Rumours are legion, but a close analysis of conditions strengthens the belief that an immediate political crisis in Germany is unlikely. Hitler has, however, undoubtedly spent the most critical week since he assumed power, but he appears to have scored a triumph as a mediator between the warring elements in the Cabinet, mollifying, in turn, Captain von Papen, the Vice-Chancellor, and Dr. Goebbels, following the banning of the former's speech at Marburg, and then the Minister of Labour, Dr. Seide, who is head of the Steel Helms, who have been involved in violent quarrels with the Brown Shirts.

ARMY RUMOURS

Hitler has even succeeded in pacifying several big industrialists, who are perturbed by the Nazi economic policy.

The rumours also involve the loyalty of the Reichswehr, the army, but the officers have made it known that they do not favour any political escapade and would march to the orders of Herr Hitler or President Hindenburg only.

There is also a suggestion that a general strike by the workers is contemplated, but it is pointed out that this would be extremely difficult to organize while Nazi worker leaders supervise every group in all industries.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

DAUGHTER'S ON MOTHER'S HEELS

Dogging mama's footsteps is the very newest trick of the bright young thing. Mother-daughter frocks are being sold in similar fabric and style and the result is a charming one. The idea will do a great deal toward keeping peace in the family, too, for how can the sixteen-year-old wail, "Mother, Why did you buy that dress?" when she herself wears its counterpart?

A nautical print in navy on crisp white silk crepe is used for the two dresses in the sketch. Mother wears a trim short-sleeved affair with a wide sailor collar, a double row of buttons placed in top and a wide pleat at center front adds movement. The belt is of string with an anchor buckle and three buttons fasten the neckline. The daughter's frock uses the same collar with cuffs to the neckline is held in with an anchor-weighted tie, has a panel front with a double row of buttons placed in true gob fashion. Matching accessories may be obtained to carry out this family idea.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Children Need Right Foods

By Olive Roberts Barton

Since we have become sun-worshippers, we might follow Old Sol about the earth a bit and see what he does for the children here and there.

Some way or other there is a popular idea that a little savage can live on ground-meal, or thumb out the soft contents of fresh coconut, and just because the sun shines benignly on his naked body all day long, he is the King of all Babydom as far as health is concerned.

But an interesting report from Yale School of Medicine, the past winter, conducting research tests of groups of young children from the tropics, as opposed to a like group from one of our northern states, refutes this somewhat and shows that the sun can do only so much and no more.

Undernourished Tropical Babies

Very little evidence of rickets was found among the tropical babies—the average being less than one per cent compared to about 5 per cent present in their northern neighbours.

But among the hundreds examined, according to the report, many were as poorly nourished "as to be in a class entirely outside of the public health experience of the physicians."

Children need food, and the right kind, to be healthy and well. True, these children from the sun belt were not savages, but natives of a West Indian island. Their diet consisted mostly of rice, beans, and coffee, "sometimes with a little milk in it." But milk, green vegetables and fresh fruit were almost unknown to them.

Calories Necessary.

Does it not speak for itself? Does it not answer the question of food? We can only call the child on such a diet a starved child. Sun rays contain vitamins but they do not contain calories—and a milkless, meatless, greenless diet will not supply either the lacking vitamins or calories needed.

As a matter of fact, the truly savage child, it seems to me, has the advantage because he forages in a more varied larder, the larder of forest, field and stream. He gets wild berries, fish, coconuts and a nice tender stev now and then, when daddy's gone a hunting. He may lack milk after he is weaned, but his mother nurses him long because her own diet is richer in milk-producing elements. Besides, goats are often kept by savage tribes, and goat milk is good.

Unbalanced Diets.

I know the diet of black bean soup, rice and coffee. It seems to be ubiquitous among the natives of poorer Spanish America.

We need not shudder. Almost on our doorsteps there are children living on mush and bread and potatoes. Compare this to the above and it will be seen that there is little difference.

Not always the poorest fall to seek variety. I have seen a mother give a child a dime to get a jar of mustard to eke out a nondescript lunch, when the same dime would have bought much needed apples, or a good kettle of greens or cabbage.

When it comes to milk it is the duty of every citizen to see that every little child has it—all children, if possible, and nursing mothers, too, as well as mother-to-be.

It won't do to say, "Here comes the sun." He gives the body power to use food, and he grows the food. It is up to us to make the contact.

CHAPTER XXXIX

When Tom Weaver swung down the ramp to the Tarrytown train he caught sight of a familiar figure just ahead of him. Instead of quickening his step, he lagged behind a bit. What the dickens, he asked himself irritably, was Vera doing here. He was not a concealed young man. He had the average male's share of confidence but he was not idiot enough to suppose, he told himself, that this girl actually pursued him. No, things simply happened this way. Wherever he happened to be these days, there she was also. Always prettily, tastefully dressed. Sweetly scented, charmingly made up. You couldn't help liking her. Tom admitted grudgingly that if it hadn't been for his meeting Gypsy he'd probably been married to Vera Gray this moment. As it was, he liked her in a comradely sort of way. He knew lots of men considered her devilish attractive. Undoubtedly she was. But he didn't feel like talking to her just now. And what, again, was she doing on this particular train?

In spite of his laggard steps he could not help catching up with Vera to-night. She turned to enter the car at the foot of the ramp and she saw him. She waved. Tom gallantly hastened and dropped into a seat beside her.

Vera's fair hair, under the brim of her small white hat, was gilt, curly; her lips were scarlet. In spite of the heat she looked cool and elegant.

"Where on earth are you bound for?" Her tone was so innocent that Tom blamed himself for a suspicious fool. He had thought he'd soon be around the corner of the boss's office when he had made the date with old Strathmore, but undoubtedly he had been wrong.

He told her, going into detail about Strathmore and what a tough customer he was. Vera was a good listener when the speaker was a man. Tom, unbundling himself, felt insensibly cheered, refreshed. Somehow all day he had been a bit downcast at the idea of Gypsy spending this evening in Hunt Gibson's company. He hadn't really liked her going with Hunt to Lila's dinner party. The fellow was undoubtedly attracted to Gypsy. He was forever hanging around. Well, a man wasn't a jaffer to his wife. Gypsy was young—she'd had a difficult time of it. It was high time she had some fun. But Tom didn't exactly relish the notion of her seeing so much of this chap. And at Lila's, too. Darn the woman!

Vera made him forget his own problems momentarily. She was, she said, going up to Irvington to see some old friends. That is, she was going up on an impulse—not on invitation. She hadn't telephoned to see if they were in. But she was going to take a chance on it. She got awfully lonely, she said, dropping her lashes. New York was a lonely place.

Tom felt a beast. He hadn't thought about the poor kid. She probably was darned lonesome. All her people were in Boston. It would be nice if he and Gypsy could have her around occasionally. It would do Vera good, thought Tom innocently, to be with two such happy people as themselves. Vera seemed cynical about marriage these days, kept saying that of course she would never marry. And that was the most unmitigated nonsense.

"I suppose you'll be in Tarrytown until the wee small hours," Vera said casually. Tom consulted his time table and said he certainly would do no such thing. He expected to get the 8.30 back to town. He'd told Gypsy he would be home shortly after 9. Then he remembered, rather tardily, that Gypsy would not be there. And he frowned. Vera noticed it and was curious in her intricate feminine fashion.

"If I don't find the Wilsons at home I'll wander around and have dinner by myself and get that train, too." She sounded awfully down, poor kid. Tom felt terribly sorry for her. When she got off she waved at him and he was glad he had been decent to her. It wasn't much fun, being a girl alone in New York.

Vera didn't take a taxi up the hill as she had said she was going to. She went into a drug store and bought a telephone booth and when she got a certain New York number her voice altered and she said a few words carefully into the mouthpiece. She was smiling when she came out. She didn't seem to be interested in her friends any more. She didn't even try to find them. She went for a walk up the main street of the village; she bought a magazine and had a chocolate malted milk and wandered back to the station. The 8.30 was a long time away, but she didn't seem to mind the idea of waiting.

In Lila's exotic dining-room a dark-haired young woman in a modish apricot satin gown looked down the long table nervously at a handsome, rather dishevelled young man who had just entered. Instinctively she gripped her hands together. Derek's eyes were wild and his tweeds stood out oddly in this assemblage of men in full evening kit.

Lila rose to the occasion superbly. "Davies, a chair for Mr. Bliss. Derek, my sweet, how good of you to drop in. Why didn't you let me know you were here? I thought you were in Banff. Some-one told me."

Derek dropped into the chair someone pushed forward, never taking his eyes from her face. If Lila was disturbed by his arrival she concealed it well. Only Gypsy noticed that the white bosom, dipping into the deep V of her black lace decolletage, rose and fell on a quicker breath. Her colouring was not heightened one iota.

"I got back this afternoon," Derek said thickly, carefully. "I only just heard about it." Marko scraped his chair on the polished floor, interrupting. "You look splendid, my dear fellow. Splendid!"

Derek fixed him with a glittering eye. "Thanks, awfully," he said carefully. "Thanks a lot. Might be good of you to say that."

The tension in the big, high-ceilinged room was almost a tangible thing. Outside, in the darkening summer night, the rumble of a storm began to deepen. Lightning flashed occasionally and in the western sky clouds gathered ominously. A girl laughed on a high, nervous note. The candle flames dipped and flickered uneasily in the breeze coming in the long windows.

Why doesn't someone do something—any something. Gypsy thought uneasily. Why, the poor boy looks half demented! Oh, I'm afraid. I'm afraid.

Derek drained the glass put before him. He put his hand on the back of Lila's chair. His expression was sardonic. "My friends," he said deliberately, looking about him, "we're modern people, all of us. I've come to congratulate you on your little—my rival."

"Don't be ridiculous," Lila said softly. "Don't be a fool, darling. Have some coffee."

Derek ignored the interruption. "All very modern," he went on, quite as if she had not spoken. "A man loses his wife to another man. He does the 'decent' thing. He says, 'Bless you, my children.' He steps out of the picture. Isn't that so, my friends? He steps out of the picture."

Marko was standing now, his face ruddy in the dim light. "Come along. We'll have a talk in the library."

Derek shook off his big hand. His fair, handsome face was distorted.

"I'm staying here," he said coldly. "I'm telling our friends all about it. They know I'm a modern man. They know these things are done. What are you afraid of?" "Hunt," Gypsy half-whispered. "This is really dreadful. Can't you do something?"

He shook his head uncomfortably and the pretty, fair-haired girl in ice-blue satin who sat beside him laughed on a hysterical note.

On an impulse Gypsy went to him. "Derek, come along. Let's go out on the terrace and cool off," she said softly. He gave her a curious, penetrating glance.

"Oh, it's you, is it? I didn't know you ran with this crowd. Where's that nice fellow, your husband?"

Gypsy's colour flamed. "He's not here, Derek. He's working."

"Ah, working," Derek's expression became cunning. "That's good. That's the right idea. We're all modern people."

But he got to his feet and Lila threw Gypsy one amused, desperate, grateful glance.

"I'll do something for you some day," she said under her breath.

Derek took Gypsy's arm and they strolled out to the narrow terrace with its high stone wall, its awnings, its trees in gaily painted tubs. The girl was trembling all over.

"It's going to storm," she said, stupidly and incoherently. The air was sultry. There was in it that feeling of high and unbearable tension.

Derek stared down at her. Sullenness had dropped from him like a mask. "Why did you want to get me out of there, little Gypsy?" he wanted to know. "What were you afraid of? Can't a man congratulate his wife on getting a better man? That is, a richer one?"

"You really mustn't say these dreadful things," she protested. "It isn't fair to Lila..."

His laugh was horrible to hear.

"No, let's be fair to Lila at all costs," he said loudly.

He leaned on the parapet. "Lovely city," he chanted, staring at the rooms spread before him like a gray tapestry. "Lovely, hellish, faithless city. Just like a woman. Promises all... gives nothing."

He lurched, and in that split second Gypsy screamed.

"Derek! Ah, great heavens!" Her fingers, groping, clutched empty air. There was no one on the parapet save herself.

MONEY MARTS

STERLING ADVANCE IS HALTED

London, June 29. A halt seems to have been called to-day in the advance of sterling.

New York has been offering dollars in anticipation of President Roosevelt's speech on national policy, expecting it would contain inflationary proposals. These hopes and the offerings are expected to subside. There is much disappointment among the speculators.

M. Reynaud's speech in the Chamber of Deputies, in which he pointed out existing difficulties in French industry and the large discrepancies between French and world prices, coupled with the recent disturbances in the provinces, are causing some apprehension as to the future of the French franc.

There has been a movement of funds from Paris to London, the British Control Fund accentuating the movement by offering francs.

This action has been severely criticised by the Financial News which points out that the fund is using up the gold stocks which are already seriously depleted, and believes it would be better to leave the franc alone, while it is weakening, with a view to preserving the Fund for the seasonal defence of the pound later in the year.

On the other hand the opinion seems to be growing that Continental gold currencies are considerably over-valued at present in terms of sterling.—Reuter.

we now do get the aftermath. This evening, to drink a glass of Hollands' waters in one of the King's small ships where much good company and I did sup there. Yet I am home pretty early, for which God be praised.

28th.—Heavy showers all day, and I very busy at my office. Later, to Repulse Bay but it did make my heart bleed to see a full half of it empty, with a hundred matcheds ripped down. And for what I am at a loss to know unless it be to form a playground for the unmuzzled curs that thoughtful owners do bring down to pollute the beach and, it may be later, to spread rabies. And I am convinced that it should be law, at present at any rate, that no one should take a dog to a main bathing beach. I myself did see a large black and tan fleabag, unmuzzled, scavenging though mighty nervous, around the matcheds that are left, which seems to me as naughty a thing as possible. And trouble will come of it yet unless these dogge worshippers do become less selfish. A pleasant bath, and later writing my mail in my chamber. And so to bed.

NEW TERRITORY DEVELOPMENT

Coincident with the news that the Government is appointing a Commission to study the trade of the Colony, it is notified that a Committee is to be selected for the purpose of investigating the question of pig-breeding and poultry-raising in the New Territories. There has been much discussion in recent times regarding the development of the rural areas on the mainland, concerning the possibilities of which there is considerable diversity of view. Despite contrary opinions, we still adhere to the belief that, given official determination to explore every avenue, and a willingness on the part of the inhabitants to co-operate, a very great deal could be done in the direction of raising foodstuffs so as to render the Colony less dependent than it now is on outside supplies. It must be conceded, however, that the Government receives precious little encouragement from the people of the New Territories to embark on any comprehensive schemes involving new ideas or affecting spheres of activity with which they are not familiar. The New Territory agriculturist is, in the main, a most conservative individual, one who looks askance on anything which runs contrary to his preconceived notions or to lines upon which he has acted in the past. Indifference, if not actual obstruction, is encountered almost everywhere by those who have even relatively modern ideas concerning the development of the territories. In the main it is true, most of the cultivable low-lying land is already given over to crops of some kind, but it is quite conceivable that it might be a paying proposition to change the character of some of this cultivation, while there are undoubtedly possibilities in other directions on the more hilly regions. The trouble is, however, as we have observed, that it seems an almost impossible task to get the inhabitants to cut adrift from the traditions of the past. This circumstance no doubt largely explains the Government's policy of hastening slowly in the matter of agricultural expansion. The new Committee, which is now being appointed, is to confine its investigations to pig-breeding

NOTES OF THE DAY

ROOSEVELT ADDRESS

President Roosevelt duly delivered his promised address to the American people over what is termed in the United States "a nationwide hook-up." It could not be described as outstandingly impressive. The President was cryptic about his monetary policy; extravagant in his claims of success for his Recovery programme; and platitudinous about the future. It was the speech of the demagogue rather than of the leader and the statesman.

CONTROVERSIAL CLAIMS

The greatest achievement of the Roosevelt regime, initiating the return of confidence, was scarcely given passing reference. The President concentrated in his claims upon the controversial issues of more tangible benefits. A higher level of wages all round was one of the claims; but what is the value of higher wages if they are outstripped by the rising cost of living? And, of course, the enormous cost of the recovery programme was conveniently overlooked. By this time nine months hence, the national debt of the United States will have reached a figure in excess of $31,000,000,000. It is not surprising that many Americans are beginning to ask whether the results justify that staggering load of debt.

IN PERSPECTIVE

It is possible, of course, that when the history of these times is written, the last couple of years will seem a lot less confusing than they look now. Sometimes it seems that America's chief diversion has been running around in small circles. Their leaders have fondly announced that the country has "come to the end of an era"; but there has been no very clear forecast of what the next era is going to be like, and a lot of time has been spent gazing fondly back on the high old days of the 'twenties. But once we get far enough off to get a perspective, it is possible that the present times will look more like a momentary halt, a breathing space between two great adventures, than a time of bewilderment and chaos.

MUCH TO DO

The depression that began with the 1929 crash put an end to the United States to the era of industrial and commercial adventure—or, to be exact, to one phase of it. The get-rich-quick era was worked out. The job remaining to be done is just as big as ever, but the method of doing it must be changed. All that is happening now is a fumbling around for the new method. America has plenty of work ahead of her—enough to keep her busy for a century. The continent is as rich as ever, the people are as energetic and as determined as ever. Beneath the seeming confusion of today is perhaps a gathering of forces for a great forward advance. But it is doubtful if demagogues will assist any.

WEIGHING CARS

A humorous column is probably the most suitable place for reference to the latest police order requiring owners of motor cars to furnish certified proof of the weight of their vehicles on re-licensing. But it is getting beyond a joke. It now appears that the Police Department is sufficiently well staffed to permit the release of a number of European officers to await the pleasure of the attendance of motorists at weighbridges during certain hours of the day—and it is stressed that no charge will be made for the weighing. Government seems to be putting itself to an enormous amount of trouble and motorists to considerable inconvenience for no really important objective. Licences already bear record of the approximate weight of the cars they cover. If there is any doubt to be cleared up, it can surely be done by the police ascertaining and keeping a record of the weight of different makes of standard cars. It hardly seems necessary to drag or drive every vehicle to the weighbridge.

and poultry-raising. Here, at any rate, are two directions in which it should be possible to effect big improvements, to the advantage alike of the New Territory people and of the Colony as a whole. Profitable industries, serving local needs as well as larger markets eventually, might well be built up in these directions, and the Committee will perform a distinct service if it is able to indicate practical lines on which a start might be made.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

June 22nd.—Early this morning before five of the clock I am awakened by a storm of thunder and lightning, which seemed not over severe, though it did prevent my sleeping. And so, while drowning, without noting any particular flash, I do hear a prodigious explosion, and I do leap from my bed, supposing from the location of the sound that Murray Barracks had been struck. But Lord! when I do reach my windows, and it is but a second, I do find myself save sheets of torrential rain. And later, upon enquiry, I do locate the clap as just above the King's dockyard, as therein mine host of the Seedy Arms do leap from his bed, thinking the great Chimbley to be struck; while at the second Watch Station the lieutenant of the Watch doth think that the bolt hath struck his warehouse. But though I am minded that the flash doth earth somewhere between my chamber and the ward-house, there are no signs of it in the Dockyard. Thereafter, the thunder do abate somewhat, though it is clear that there are two storms about, and not one. Loosing thus my sleep, I do later fall into a doze, and so was somewhat late at my office, where I do labour, until I must needs get me to a preview of a film, but it was a very bad one! Later I do take a posset with a mighty keen rider of horses in these parts, and with his pretty Lady, and much pleasant talk of Racing, of the which I am persuaded I did learn somewhat, though I am well aware that my racing knowledge is sadly to seek. Later, very busy at my mail, and I must never suffer matters to run so far backward again.

23rd.—Up betimes, and a fine day, for which God be thanked. After trimming myself, to the office, where I am very busy, and after to the Clubbe, where I do take my luncheon. Talking before with Mr. Povy, we do recall that it is the fortieth birthday of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, whom may God bless. And, as I remark to Mr. Povy, the comparison of his life with that of his grand-father, afterwards King Edward VII, doth furnish a most interesting study for those who are versed in the history of our own times. Later to the Valley to play at bowls, but Lord! nothing doth go right, and we are sadly beaten. But I am minded that Mr. W. Forrest will yet be heard of as a number one in local Bowling, and that far beyond the Second Division. Back hastily to the Clubbe, where I do on my garments of ceremony, after a hasty bath, and so to the Gloucester House, where I dine very pleasantly upon the terrace, and after by motor coach to Repulse Bay. But our coach must needs proceed with some caution, as there are many falls of earth after the heavy rains. But it doth please me to find that the Comptroller of Works Publique doth have them marked by a red light pretty efficiently. Beyond, the road is blocked, as I learn, between Repulse Bay and Stanley, and also between Shaokwan and the Shek-O road, by Chai Wan. And, as the Shek-O road be also blocked, I do foresee that the residents of that ancient and honourable borough will enjoy some days' holiday. But indeed I do trust, from the bottom of my heart, that their provision of Holland's waters and Ale be not diminished beyond replenishing. As for my party, we do drink a glass of wine at the Hostelry at Repulse Bay, where, with the moon up, the view is very fine, and so home by Aberdeen Village very pleasantly, and so to bed.

24th. (Lord's Day).—This day I do follow my usual practice and lie late, and then fall to ordering my garments. But after hanging them upon the verandah I do find them to be so spotted of damp that I fear they are beyond my treatment with benzine. So I am minded, after having them properly cleansed, to set them in cold storage. Very busy later on arranging my Chamber in a new manner so that I shall sleep more coolly, or so I do hope. For upon the whole the direction of the winds hath been most contrary, and I have had less breeze than ever I remember in the Clubbe, even through all of last summer. Yet I do trust that I have now made a pretty good job of it. Dined, but the room was mighty hot, and after writing in my diary for some long time, and so to bed.

25th.—Reading this day in the news sheetes I do learn that Brown Jack wins for the sixth time the Queen Alexandra Stakes, which is, as I suppose, the longest time that race that is run at the present time. But of this I am not fully assured. I also find that, in Mexico, a Malayan princess has died of that dread disease hydrophobia, and I do perceive that it is not only in this Colony that men do love their dogges beyond and to the detriment of their fellow-creatures. Further news from the North makes it clear that the planes do very well, and I am right glad to hear that they have slain some of the pirates. For I am not one of those who reckon naught of the blood of the innocent but mauler with slobbering gush at the slaying of a criminal.

26th.—Very busy all day at my Office, but Lord! how it did rain and I no umbrella. But later I did get a lift in a motor coach, and so got dry to a preview of a picture. Later in the Clubbe I call into talk with Mr. Tod, who tells me he is right certain that a typhoon shall come on the morrow to the Colony, and although I do point out it is too early for one to reach us, though it may cause the signals to go up, he becomes somewhat opinionate upon the point and so I say no more. Yet I must admit that, although I proved right in my forecast, yet his opinion did cause me to close the shutters before getting me to bed, and so save myself a soaking when a very heavy squall and much rain blows up at about five of the clock straight into my chamber. And so heavy it was that I even did get wet in closing the slats.

27th.—I learn that in the qualifying round for the Golfe Championship, Mr. H. Colton does a record score, and I trust that it doth mean that he is in good form; for it is high time that an Englishman did win the event. Yet have I noticed from time to time that the British do produce their fireworks in the qualifying rounds, which count not for the title, while the Americans do qualify but hardly and produce later their brilliance in the rounds which do count. Very wet all day, and there was a typhoon as I verily believe but at some distance, and

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts
"Here comes the bogey man," as the spectator said when Cotton appeared on the links.

Verily and indeed, judging from newspaper correspondence, we do live in the garb-age!

"In his private life," we are told, "Don Bradman is a quiet, home-staying lad." And even in his public life it seems no easy matter at times to get him out.

We hear of a local Aberdonian who is holding back his weekly Home letter until to-morrow, when a two-cent reduction in postal rates takes effect.

A writer says history has proved that man can do without money. Yes, but that was in the Stony Age.

A reader wants to know if we think chit-coolies really lead an active life. Yes, taking things all round.

Another reader points out that many race ponies are given peculiar names. Especially if they don't finish in the first three.

In the case of small boys who love ice-creams, we suppose it's a matter of zero worship.

"Reduce your weight whilst asleep," says an advertisement. Hips that pass in the night!

A ruling has been made in a Club at Home that girl cricketers must in future wear long trousers. Possibly to stop those glances to leg.

A natural history writer says shell-fish multiply rapidly. Come to think of it, lobsters and crabs have plenty of nippers.

There's a firm of American stockbrokers called Hatt and Rabbit. Names to conjure with!

A centenarian attributes his longevity to raw onions. But it must have been a lonely life.

The world's strawberry crop is declining rapidly, says the British Ministry of Agriculture. But there never will be a lack of raspberries.

Sharks never sleep, says an authority. Many a man who lost his margin in share deals will agree.

Scientists are arguing over whether an ancient Queen of Egypt was as important as any of the Pharaohs. Anyway, she's just as dead.

"Dogs talk to you with their tails," according to a dog fancier. Stump oratory, so to speak.

The craze for speed is not confined to youth. Even staid old taipans have an occasional quick one.

THIS BRIDAL GOWN of luminous white satin has long, light-fitting sleeves of all-over lace, and a flattering V-neckline. The T-strap sandals are also of white satin, and the long veil is of tulle.

Dressed in Flattering Luxury...

HERE COMES the BRIDE!

This year's fashions are nowhere quite as elegant as in the costumes which will be worn at weddings

by Julia

HERE'S a lovely costume for the bride's mother. It is made of soft beige lace, with a beige fox peplum. The sandals are trimmed with gold kid overlays.

BRIDAL gowns and bridesmaids' dresses reflect the elegance which predominates 1934's fashions. Never has wedding attire been more flattering and fascinating than it is this season.

Luminous white satin is, as always the favourite fabric for a wedding gown. But white taffeta is almost as popular and if you want to please the ears as well as the eyes of the wedding guests, by all means choose taffeta that swishes and rustles as you glide down the aisle.

Attention will be drawn to the neckline of the bridal gown for necklines really are the most interesting things about the new bridal outfits. Some are high, terminating in pert little turn-over collars. Others are rounded, fitting closely about the throat. These often are trimmed with padded bands of satin.

Soft, high cowl necklines are popular, too. But if you aren't interested in the high versions, look for plain V-shaped ones, bound with bias strips of the same fabric as the gown itself, or else banded with lace.

Speaking of lace, it is used in profusion as trimming. Of course, you can have an entire dress of it but, generally speaking, the mode dictates satin with lace. If you have an heirloom lace veil tucked away in a trunk, by all means get it out and use it to trim your wedding gown.

Veils allow you to express your individuality. You can have a long trailing one made of yards and yards of tulle or, if you prefer, wear a veil that is shoulder or waistline length. These shorter ones have a pert air about them that is flattering to the very youthful bride or to one who is quite short.

There is a vogue for the all-white wedding—that is, the maids as well as the bride wear pure white with colour notes introduced into the bridal procession via the attendant's slippers, flowers or bands on their hats.

Satin slippers are perfect with satin bridal gowns. Suede pumps with silver underlays are grand with taffeta. You can get white satin slippers for the attendants and then have the slippers dyed to match or contrast with the various dresses.

DAINTY AND REGAL is the sheath-like wedding costume shown here. It is made of shimmering white satin with a long train, and an extremely long veil of embroidered net. Robert Switz

BY MORRIS GILBERT.

The mark of the "Intellectual"—the professional scholar—is stamped thick over the sordid affair of international spying which now engrosses France.

Half the persons arrested in Paris in the spy hunt which broke around Christmas are closely identified with teaching and degree hunting. The "League of Nations of Espionage" seems to be dominated by a mortar-board.

Especially in the case of Madame Lydia Tchekaloff Stahl, Master of Arts at Columbia University, New York, with special honours in Chinese, Doctor of Laws at the University of Paris, perpetual student at the Sorbonne, gifted with knowledge, it is said, of every modern language and a smattering of tribal dialects.

But Lydia Stahl, eternal co-ed, is not the only defendant who stems directly from the student life, of the world.

AMERICANS SEIZED.

A co-defendant, the New York-born Marjorie Tilley Switz, was an American college girl. Her husband, Robert Gordon Switz, travelled in France on a student's passport, at more than one university. This summer, he explains his arrival in Paris, he came to meet friends of his—professors in Columbia.

The only French woman so far arrested is the youthful school teacher, Madeleine Mermet, 23 years old. Her scholastic attainments give her the privilege of teaching far more advanced classes than the little boys and girls she tutored in the St. Queen suburb on the northern rim of Paris before going to jail.

INTELLECTUAL GROUP: SPIES AND THE MORTAR-BOARD

Last but not least, the curious figure of Louis Pierre Nicolas Martin, 23 years old, certified professor of languages detached as interpreter-translator to the French Ministry of Marine, a passionate scholar, devoted to his books—and to only one other attachment, Lydia Stahl.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY.

Lydia Stahl was the star of this scholarship. She lacked—official spokesmen are responsible for this observation—only one attribute to become the greatest "femme fatale" of modern times. That attribute was beauty.

Other spokesmen deny this lack. They say that if Lydia Stahl did not conform to rigid standards of pulchritude, she made up for it by a curious, a stirring beauty of her own. They point out that despite her years—she is well over 40—she seems to have made a slave of Professor Martin, 37 years old, plodding studious, solitary. Thus they account for the charge that Lydia held his devotion for ten years at a price which, if current accusations are sustained, meant the sacrifice of his patriotism and the danger and odium of high treason.

The story of Lydia Stahl is a fascinating one, all the more so because the key of it seems to be missing. Perhaps it is this which the current investigation—expected to last at least four months—will discover.

She was born Lydia Tchekaloff, daughter of well-to-do parents, at Rostoff-on-the-Don in Russia in November 12, 1885. Passing through secondary schools there, she came to France around 1905. Shortly before the war she married Boris Stahl at the famous Russian church in Paris, spending summer holidays in Sebastopol, his family home. Eight years later, she divorced him in Russia and returned to France.

Meanwhile, during the war, she spent a long time in Helsingfors, and there she met the celebrated Vera Hambon, now being questioned on spy charges in Finland. She returned to Finland in 1927. Presently, she turned up in New York, studying at Columbia. Boris was there and they met. She was with another mysterious Scandinavian, Sigrid Bostrom presently, but during past years she had come to know Professor Martin.

Their original common interest was the Chinese language which both were studying.

In Lydia's Paris flat, it has been testified, papers were seen by friends which seemed to incrimispying. It has turned into a money racket; a large, organized, illicit, and occasionally profitable business of supplying what is needed for cash.

Above: Two camera close-ups of the mysteriously enchanting Mme. Lydia Stahl, "star" of the real spy drama which now absorbs Paris. Below: The Paris hotel in which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Switz of East Orange, N.J., were arrested in connection with the same case.

PARIS SPY SCARE

At present it appears that military secrets are commodities, just like apples or balloon tyres or electric ice boxes. One doesn't exactly shop for them in the classified advertising, but there are certain markets where they can be traded to the fellow who slaps the money right down on the line. Spying has gone huckster.

ALL TOO WELL-TO-DO.

The examining magistrate, Monsieur Bonon, who examined each suspect in turn, laid great stress on one fact. Everybody arrested seemed to have too much money—too much according to frugal French minds for people in their station of life. Each of the accused, beside denying guilt, made precise declarations as to how he or she came by their funds. That didn't explain, officials pointed out the unanimity with which they all distrust banks and carried around bigish sums.

Concerning money, three other names have been especially mentioned in connection with the "grosse affaire d'espionage" now going on. They are Mme. Ingrid Bostrom, mysterious Scandinavian, who gave Martin power of attorney for her strong-box when she quitted France in 1927. She was named last month (Dec. 1933) in connection with the Finnish dragnet which caught 30 alleged spies and gave Paris police the tip-off they have been recently using.

Worse has happened in trades no less reputable than secret services.

The others are one Retschki and one Stakovic, described as "leaders of the band," who quitted France last summer when it appeared the police were hot on their trail. To both these the role of leader has been given. Their places, according to allegations, were taken by Berkovitz and Switz, Berkovitz being the paymaster, Switz the clerk. Berkovitz analysts assert, rarely saw, some times didn't even know, his agent, Switz was the contact-man, the man who took the stuff and made the pay-off.

A "FRAME-UP" OR—?

What was the "stuff" and what were the pay-offs? Vaguely—naval plans, air plans. Groups here assert that the whole thing is a frame-up, as Switz and others incriminated stoutly declare. Politics, these unkind critics of the police say, demanded something to hold popular attention. There was a drastic budget bill passing in Parliament when the secrets were made. There was need, in some minds, to knock down Herriot, notable friend of the Soviets, and to discredit the present Franco-Russian agreement. Hence—arrest a few people and yell "Spy!"

After all, the sums involved (as disclosed by the police) are not enormous. Perhaps the "grosse affaire" will peter out to the dimensions of a mere petty deceit, hardly worth calling a racket. Perhaps the alleged spies have been "needling" their alleged papers making a fair living by selling second-hand goods.

Worse has happened in trades no less reputable than secret services.

JEWS AND PALESTINE

SEEK EXTENSION OF IMMIGRATION

London, June 29. A deputation from the Board of Deputies of British Jews, in an interview with the Secretary of Colonies, Sir Philip Cunliffe, represented that the feeling of the Palestinian and the world's Jews was that the labour schedules inadequately met the economic absorptive capacity of Palestine, and that, as a result, the country was not in a position to exploit to the fullest extent its economic possibilities and natural resources.

The deputation emphasized that a large number of young single able-bodied persons who had been specially trained for life in that country were awaiting permission to enter Palestine.

An earnest hope was expressed that the Government would take into consideration the requirements of the Jewish national home and also the condition of the majority of Jews outside that country, and would in the fullest measure implement the established principle that immigration into Palestine be permitted to the extent to which that country is able to absorb fresh immigrants.

Sir Philip Cunliffe, later, in thanking the deputation, said that the policy and principle were not in dispute.

The rate of immigration must be governed by the economic absorptive capacity of country.

Executive decisions in accordance with that policy must rest as hitherto with the High Commissioner to whom he intended to send a full account of the interview.—British Wireless.

Weighing Cars

To the Editor,

Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir,—Everyone can sympathise with the Police in their desire to prevent defrauding of the revenue. But is it necessary to ask the car-owners of the Colony to go to the trouble of having their cars weighed, not to mention the expense in petrol in going to Wan-chai or Jordan Road? There must be 2,000-3,000 car owners, of whom at least 95 per cent. drive stock models. There are only some 20 odd car distributors. Would it not have been simpler to have obtained certificates from those of the weights of models imported over, say, the last five years? These could, if necessary, have been supported by the literature all manufacturers issue and which almost invariably give weights, or by shipping documents. Then all that would have been required would be the weighing of the few cars which were not stock models regularly imported. Is this not a good example of unselfish, over-government, about which we hear so much?—"Stock Model."

DOG MUZZLING

either muzzled or on the lead, shall be deemed to have allowed his dog to go abroad neither muzzled nor on the lead, and to have contravened this regulation, notwithstanding any proof that the dog was wearing a muzzle, or was on a lead, at such time.

"CITIZEN" SEEKS INFORMATION

Sir,—I make no apology for returning to the subject of rabies as there are certain questions I wish to ask, in what I conceive to be the public interest. I would like to make it clear that my intention is not to "get at" or unnecessarily embarrass any Government Department, or Official, but a genuine desire to find out what the position with regard to rabies in this Colony really is.

1. Why will not the Government publish statistics giving particulars of where and when cases have occurred, and whether the dogs concerned have been registered or not? The only information made public to date has come by way of comment from the Kowloon Magistrate. It must be presumed that he has access to official information. Why is this not published by Authority in the press in the first instance?

2. How many proved cases have occurred since the muzzling order was first introduced last year? My authority again being the Kowloon Magistrate, I can recollect five only. There was the original case at Tai-po—imported from Shanghai, and which caused the re-enforcement of the restrictions last year—and more recently cases near Castle Peak and at Tin Kau, Shing Mun, and Yau-matli. There is also a report of one at Sha-tau-kok, but I do not know if this is official.

ANTI-RABIC SERUM.

3. Why does not the Government state whether or not supplies of anti-rabic serum are available in quantity, and if so, when and where treatment can be obtained and at what cost? I have heard it rumoured that the only place where this is obtainable is somewhere in Mautau-ko, on the outskirts of the town and that the charge is $8 per dog. Also one would have to incur the cost of transport to and from this place. If this is true, it will preclude many dog-owners from availing themselves of this protection.

4. What active steps are being taken to combat the disease. All the public has been told officially is the passive step of raising fines to $25. This, while very unpleasant, would be borne by the Public if it were assured that it was but a part—and a minor part—of a general campaign but is it?

If it stands alone, then it will merely annoy and produce the reverse of co-operation from the Public, particularly as it is pretty well known in Kowloon that in the villages adjacent to Kowloon City, and Kai Tak, and in the heart of Kowloon itself, in the Cemetery Area, there are dogs which have never seen a muzzle or collar, roaming around and probably ownerless and which appear to have escaped the attention of the Authorities. I can state, from personal observation, that this state of affairs obtained as recently as last week.

Incidentally, Sir, why is it that while the papers report in detail every Court case affecting residents of European Sections, they do not do so in the case of residents of, say, Yau-matli, Kowloon City, or Wanchai?

CATS AND GOATS.

5. Are any steps being taken to prevent cats and goats becoming infected? They are subject to rabies and presumably can be bitten by an infected dog. This is particularly important with regard to goats, for wherever there are Indian guards, there will goats be found. I have seen them, for example, near Kai Tak and in the outlying parts.

The Authorities state whether they consider rabies to be endemic, and that therefore some kind of restriction is to be regarded as permanent procedure, or if the present situation is, in their opinion, exceptional, and that the steps now taken, or to be taken, will, at some future date be sufficiently effective to warrant the revocation of the present regulations?

In conclusion, I have recently heard many and varied opinions of the supposed attitude of the Government in not publishing particulars of when and where cases have happened, and it may be said that there are two opposing schools of thought. One believes the situation to be much worse than is generally supposed and alleges the reluctance of the Government to publish figures as proof that the Authorities do not wish to panic the community. The other is inclined to regard the whole business as largely a scare and adduces in favour of this theory, the supposition that were figures available to the Public, this contention would be overwhelmingly demonstrated. Now, Sir, surely it would be a simple matter for the Government to publish the information and allay public apprehension? Also, should it do so, this would enable dog-owners to avoid suspect quarters of the town when exercising to be specially on guard, if from necessity called upon to enter any such contaminated area.

CITIZEN.

[The Medical and Sanitary Department issues a daily return of notifiable diseases, including rabies, but the areas in which they occur are only broadly indicated—e.g. Victoria, Kowloon, New Territories, etc. Fourteen cases have so far been notified. Regarding active steps to combat the disease, the Government is now extending the muzzling and other regulations to the New Territories.—Ed. H.K.T.]

DRAMATIC DEFEAT OF MISS JACOBS AT WIMBLEDON

Beaten By Miss Joan Ingram After Three Sets

NOTTS WIN BY 20 RUNS

EXCITING GAME WITH KENT

FINE CAMBRIDGE VICTORY

LATEST COUNTY CRICKET

London, June 29. Rain upset two matches in the county cricket programme and caused them to be left in a drawn state with the teams each taking four points, but the rest of the encounters saw definite results.

The most exciting match was between Notts and Kent at Nottingham, where the visitors were beaten by 20 runs.

Masterly bowling by Voce, the former Test player, turned the game in favour of Notts at a time when Kent looked good for the runs. His 7 for 91 was the reason why Notts obtained the 15 points.

The scoring was comparatively low, Notts being sent back for 230 and 263. Keeton shone in the second innings with a faultless 114.

Kent finished 24 runs behind on the first innings, and made a big attempt for the runs, but failed in a great finish.

YORKSHIRE BENEFIT. Yorkshire benefited, for in addition to Kent's defeat, the Tykes won handsomely against Northants. The appalling weakness in the Northants batting was again revealed, when the team was sent back for 85 and 84.

Macaulay was chief wicket-taker in the first innings, his five victims costing only 21 runs, but Bowes, the Test bowler, was even more successful in the follow-on, capturing 7 for 34.

Yorkshire were able to declare at 315 for 7, after Mitchell had scored 111, and still win by an innings and 146 runs.

Gloucester suffered another defeat, this time at the hands of Warwickshire. Gloucesters were dismissed for 163 in their first knock and 181 in their second, Mayer taking 6 for 30.

Warwick, in their initial venture at the crease totalled 260, R.E.S. Wyatt contributing 85, and they knocked off the necessary 93 for the loss of one wicket.

BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT. The most brilliant achievement of the day was by Cambridge, who against all the run of the earlier play, beat Worcester by three wickets.

Cambridge did atrociously in their first innings, Jackson (5 for 31) sending them back for 116. Worcester had 217 on the board before their last wicket fell and in the second innings were able to declare at 251 for 9, leaving the University to score 353 to win.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Yorkshire (315-7 dec.) beat Northants (85 & 84) by innings and 146 runs.
Warwick (260 & 93-1) beat Gloucester (168 & 181) by nine wickets.
Notts (230 & 263) beat Kent (206 & 267) by 20 runs.
Middlesex (178-4) and Essex (242-8 dec.) drew.
Sussex (385-8 dec.) and Derbyshire (340-7) drew.

FRIENDLY.

Cambridge (116 & 353-7) beat Worcester (217 & 251-9 dec.) by three wickets.

A brilliant century by J. H. Human, and good support from other batsmen, saw Cambridge obtain the runs in dramatic style. They lost seven wickets in the attempt. Human carried his bat for a masterly 146.

Middlesex and Essex had to be content with four points apiece as a result of restricted play, and the same thing happened to Sussex and Derbyshire, who could not find sufficient time for a first innings decision.—Reuter.

WOMAN WINS HORSE JUMPING CONTEST

Berlin, June 24.

For the first time in history a German sport woman rider galloped away with the first prize in the annual Hamburg horse jumping derby. It was an outstanding equestrian and social event of the summer season when Frau Irmgard von Opel mounted on her famous horse Nanuk and outjumped 29 of the best horsemen of the nation. Till a few years ago no woman ever participated in such a nerve-wrecking and strenuous contest. No less than four women riders competed in the present derby. Erna von Marvde on the superlative mount Anr even, taking the fourth place as well.

COLLAPSE OF HARE AND LESTER IN

MEN'S DOUBLES

FUJIKURA OUT OF LUCK

OTHER WIMBLEDON RESULTS

London, June 29. Men's doubles and mixed doubles were started at Wimbledon to-day, the programme including several interesting matches.

The English combination, C. E. Hare and H. K. Lester, went to pieces against the South African-Japanese pair, V. G. Kirby and R. Miki, losing after five sets.

Hare and Lester led 5-2 in the first set, but the winners' combination was so good that the set went to twelve games before the Englishmen claimed it.

Miki was especially good in his smashing, continually finding the middle line between his opponents. Both he and Kirby attacked from the net with success, Kirby paving the way with cunning drop shots.

In the second and third sets the English couple went to pieces, Hare being extraordinarily weak. Miki and Kirby made the utmost of their advantage by playing on to him.

Continuing to display better form, the winners led 5-1, in the fourth set, but Hare and Lester unexpectedly took six games in a row to level up the score.

WIMBLEDON RESULTS.

MEN'S SINGLES (FOURTH ROUND).

J. Crawford (Australia) beat Yamagishi (Japan) 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2
L. Stoecken (America) beat H.G.N. Lee (Britain) 6-2, 6-4, 6-2
H. W. Austin (Britain) beat L. Hecht (Czechoslovakia) 6-3, 6-1, 6-2
S. B. Wood (America) beat Davey Jones (America) 6-3, 6-3, 6-1

WOMEN SINGLES (THIRD ROUND).

Miss J. Ingram (Britain) beat Miss H. Jacobs (America) 4-6, 6-4, 6-1
Miss M. Scriven (Britain) beat Mrs. Law (Britain) 6-3, 6-2
Miss S. Palfrey (America) beat Mrs. L. A. Godfree (Britain) 6-3, 6-1
Miss Goldschmidt (France) beat Miss K. Stammers (Britain) 7-5, 6-7

FOURTH ROUND.

Fr. Aussem (Germany) beat Miss F. James (Britain) 6-2, 6-1
Madame Mathieu (France) beat Fr. Horn (Germany) 7-5, 6-2
V. Kirby and R. Miki beat C. E. Hare and H. K. Lester (Britain) 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1

Ganday Dower and C. E. Malfroy beat Aoki and Fujikura (Japan) 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, 12-15, 6-3

MIXED DOUBLES (FIRST ROUND).

G. M. Lott and Miss Palfrey (America) beat J. Fujikura and Miss Brazier 5-7, 6-3, 6-4
R. Miki and Miss D. Round beat D. G. Freshwater and Mrs. Robinson 6-1, 6-3

Thereafter they were a spent force and could only win a single game in the fifth set.

FUJIKURA OUT OF LUCK.

Jiro Fujikura, who earlier in the day had figured in a men's doubles defeat, was out of luck when he played with Miss Phyllis Brazier, the Sussex county player.

They ran up against George M. Lott and Miss Sarah Palfrey and were beaten after three sets, and an excellent match.

In the first set the losers were trailing at 1-4, but beautiful net work by Fujikura and steady driving by Miss Brazier saw them catch up at four-all and finally take the set at 7-5.

The third set was the closest, but it was Lott's superior service, smashing and driving, added to Miss Palfrey's dainty volleys which was the deciding factor.

GOOD COMBINATION.

In a second round mixed doubles engagement to-day Miki, the Japanese veteran, and Miss Dorothy Round, one of the most outstanding of the women contestants, defeated the English pair, Freshwater and Mrs. Robinson. The scores were 6-1, 6-3.

The Miki-Round combination was much too strong for the English county players. Miki's well-placed volleys frequently left his opponents standing and he was so well backed up that the crowd said the English pair might as well have been up against two men.

Miki and Miss Round were not extended to win and when the match concluded Miki said, when interviewed, that he found Miss Round so admirable a partner that he was optimistic of a chance at the title. "We'll go far," he said.

HARD FOUGHT MATCH.

In the first round of the men's doubles Ganday Dower and Malfroy beat Aoki and Fujikura in a long, hard-fought match which lasted two and a quarter hours on a slow court. The scores were 3-0, 6-3, 6-0, 12-14, 6-3.

There was a nasty cross wind which prevented long driving and the Japanese were superior at the net. They won the fourth set there. The Englishmen were weak on ground strokes.

Fujikura played well, though his style is more suited to singles. Aoki gave good support but he tried to do too much.—Reuter.

AUSTIN AGAIN WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS

FOUR SEEDED PLAYERS REACH MEN'S LAST EIGHT

MISS KATHLEEN STAMMERS SHOCKED

HONOURS OF THE DAY FAIRLY EVENLY DIVIDED

London, June 29.

The first real sensation at Wimbledon was reserved for to-day, when Miss Helen Jacobs, America's leading player, and one of the most strongly fancied candidates for the women's singles crown, was defeated in the third round by Miss Joan Ingram, the English girl.

In a terrific three set match, Miss Ingram won after 27 games and by capturing the last two sets. The last time these two players met was in the British Hard Court Championships at Bournemouth last year, when Miss Jacobs won quite comfortably in straight sets.

But to-day she came up against an opponent, playing at the top of her form, and whose determination could not be shaken. Although being made to concede the first set, Miss Ingram fought back with all the skill in her power, and once she had captured the second set, just ran the American off her feet. It was a victory which was enthusiastically cheered by a huge crowd, who had rushed to the court upon hearing the news of Miss Ingram's second set recovery.

This is easily the outstanding success in the career of Miss Ingram, which, since 1927, has been varied. From winning Middlesex junior titles, she made her way into International tennis, playing for England against Wales last year. She has won a number of open tournaments in England and abroad, and is a Middlesex county player.

ENGLISH VICTIMS.

Apart from this victory and the further progress of Miss Margaret Scriven, English women had rather a bad day.

Mrs. L. A. Godfree fell a third round victim to Miss Sarah Palfrey, although this was not unexpected. Miss Palfrey's severity in attack was too much for Mrs. Godfree, whose singles game has suffered of late.

But the biggest shock was the elimination of Miss Kathleen Stammers by Miss Goldschmidt, the French player.

Miss Stammers was beaten in two sets, the first of which went to 7-5, and the second to 9-7. It was an intensely disappointing result for English partisans, who were looking to Miss Stammers to join Peggy Scriven and Miss Round in the last sixteen.

Another English reverse was the defeat of Miss Freda James in the fourth round, by Fraulein Cicely Aussem. Fraulein Aussem, who is playing right up to top form, was the first to enter the last eight. She completely subdued the British Wightman Cup player, winning with the greatest ease with the loss of three games in two sets.

The second woman to reach the last eight was Madame Mathieu, leading French exponent, who overcame Fraulein Horn of Germany in straight sets.

MEN'S LAST EIGHT

Four Including Austin, Reach Quarter-Final

Four players, all of them "seeded" reached the quarter-finals of the men's singles to-day. They were: Jack Crawford (Australia), Lester Stoecken (America), H. W. Austin (England) and Sydney Wood (America).

Austin kept British hopes up to top key by another amazing straight sets win. This time it was Hecht, the Czechoslovakian, who was led to the slaughter. Playing perfect tennis, Austin won with the loss of six games, and further enhanced his prospects.

The Englishman was on the top of his form, displaying wonderful control over his shots, and leaving Hecht bewildered by his superb manoeuvring. Whenever Austin went to the net it was to kill or volley with an ace, and off the ground he was faultless.

One Englishman went out as a result of the day's play. H. G. N. Lee fell a victim to Lester Stoecken, the tallest competitor, losing in straight sets. Lee managed to win twelve games, but was really no match for the Californian, whose fast service and masterly net work earned him the majority of his points.

Sydney Wood passed on at the expense of his fellow-countryman, Davey Jones, the Cambridge University Blue, whom he beat in three sets with the loss of ten games. Wood, still showing pleasing form further emphasised his potentialities as a Wimbledon champion.

CRAWFORD THROUGH.

Wimbledon, June 29. Jack Crawford, the title-holder, held his place in the fourth round of the tennis tourney here against the Japanese star Yamagishi, though the Japanese player extended him and the fight was much more keen than the scores suggest. The scores were 4-6, 9-4, 6-2, 6-2.

The Japanese gave a brilliant display and convinced those who watched that with suitable and regular training he could get to the top of the world in four or five years. His back-hand and cross-court passing shots were equal to Crawford's, but he lacked the essential control of speed in his forehand driving.

His service was excellent and he oftenaced the champion. He was really brassy, too, and there was more volleying in the last two sets than in any of the others.

SHANGHAI TENNIS TEAM COMING

University Players To Appear In Hongkong

A team of six tennis players from St. John's University, Shanghai, will in vade the Colony next week, and, according to a tentative programme already drawn up, will play a series of matches against local clubs during their stay here.

Tennis is considered a major sport at St. John's, and during the past decade the university has produced a large number of tennis players, prominent among them being K. H. Tyan, Ho Ka-lau, (the local exponent) and Guy Cheng. These players all received their coaching from Messrs William Pott, W. P. Roberts and James Pott, well-known Shanghai players.

The team, which is due to arrive in the Colony on Tuesday next, is composed of Kwok Yue-kit (Capt.) Ma On-kuen, Sze Yuen, Chan Yick, Tong Wing-shun and Wong Kam-hay.

The first two are experienced players, who competed in league matches and open tournaments in the North. The last named, Wong Kam-hay, is a Hongkong boy and has taken part in local tournaments.

It is expected that the team will be able to hold its own against any of the local league clubs, with the possible exception of the Chinese R.C. and the Indian R.C.

The visitors will play singles and doubles and in all their matches the contests will be along Interport lines, that is, three singles and two doubles matches. The arrangements are in the hands of Mr. Ho Ka-lau, who has drawn up the following tentative programme for the visitors:

Wednesday, July 4 at 4.15 p.m. v. St. Stephen's at Stanley.

Thursday, July 5 at 3.30 p.m. v. Hongkong University at Pokfulam.

Friday, July 6 at 5.15 p.m. v. Kowloon C.C. at Kowloon.

Saturday, July 7 at 3.30 p.m. v. South China A.A. at King's Park.

Sunday, July 8 at 3.30 p.m. v. Chinese R.C. at Causeway Bay.

Monday, July 9 at 5.15 p.m. v. Indian R.C. at Sookunpo.

After the matches in Hongkong, the visitors will leave for Canton where they will play several matches, probably with the Citizen Club, the Shamene Club and the German Club.

WOMEN GOLFERS ADMIT AGES

Women golfers of Washington are willing to admit their ages. Steps have been taken by the Washington State Women's Golf Association to inaugurate a women's tournament for seniors. And much to the amazement of many of the members, 10 feminine players readily admitted they were 50 or more.

As one eligible explained it, the elderly women are proud of the fact that they still can shoot a good game at 50.

"We would rather the world did know our ages when we can still carry our clubs around after reaching the half-century mark," she said.

Plans are to hold the first tournament, a one-day affair, in conjunction with the women's state meet at Bellingham next year.

Two of yesterday's winners at Wimbledon are picture here. On right is Miss Peggy Scriven and with her is Madame Mathieu. The latter reached the last eight in the women's singles.

MIXED DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

KHOO HOOI-HYE & MRS. MEADMORE BEATEN

THE COLLACO COMBINATION IN THE FINAL

The semi-finals of the Shanghai Mixed Doubles tennis championship were played off last week, when Khoo Hooi-hye and Mrs. Meadmore were surprisingly defeated, and Miss Collaco and her brother reached the final.

Making a cool recovery after losing the first set to Khoo Hooi-hye and Mme. Meadmore, L. J. Coulicher and Mrs. Taylor last week won the following two sets in the semi-final of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association's Mixed Doubles Championships on the Association's courts. The final scores were 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In all three sets their women partners played a much better game than the men from a spectacular view point, monopolizing the ball for long steady rallies, but the points, coming in with smashing drives which invariably went begging.

Madame Meadmore and Khoo had to battle all the way for the first set, opening their account after being two games in arrears, but following Madame Meadmore's winning service, Coulicher dropped his and the game score was equalized.

Each won an alternate service to bring the score to four all, after which, Khoo and Madame Meadmore won the two remaining games and set.

KHOO'S POOR SERVICE.

The loss of the set was largely due to Coulicher's faulty net play and over-earnestness to smash, points going to the opposition specially on the latter account. Mrs. Taylor, however, kept to the back line and proved almost impassable.

Madame Meadmore and Khoo, who seemed to be off his game, won the first two games of the second set, but thereafter Coulicher and Mrs. Taylor had pretty well their own way, taking six straight games.

While there were five deuce games in the set, Coulicher and Mrs. Taylor were never in serious danger, Khoo's service being ineffective and Madame Meadmore failing with her backhand, a weakness of which the winning couple were quick to take advantage.

For the victory in the third set, full honours must be awarded to Mrs. Taylor, Coulicher going from bad to worse at the net, and leaving his partner to bear most of the burden. Keeping to the back of the court, Mrs. Taylor's long drives were pleasant to watch, and the rallies which she exchanged with Madame Meadmore drew applause.

THE COLLACO'S WIN.

Miss Collaco and H. Collaco defeated J. H. Pott and Miss Nicholls in two straight sets in the semi-final of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association mixed doubles Championship and qualified to meet Coulicher and Mrs. Taylor in the final.

Pott and Miss Nicholls took the first game of the first set and the two Collacos the next three, only to lose the following three to their opponents, with the score 4-3 in their opponents' favour, a splendid display of perfect understanding and partnership brought the Collaco pair to the top of their form and with series of smashing drives and volleys they had the major part of the play until the end.

A double fault when the score in the next set was 6-3 and 40 love in his favour, caused the loss of the only game in the set against Collaco, Pott fighting back managed to clinch the game against the odds.

Miss Collaco and Collaco played throughout with confidence, and the issue of this match was hardly in doubt as perfect timing on the part of Miss Collaco and the good judgment and fast strokes of her partner gave evidence of their ability.

OBITUARY

MR. LO CHEUNG-SHIU PASSES AWAY

One of the most distinguished men of commerce in Hongkong, and one who has been for many years associated with progressive works in the Colony, Mr. Lo Cheung-shiu died at 12.30 o'clock last night after a lengthy illness.

Although he retired as co-principal of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, Ltd., in 1920, having served with that organisation for many years, Mr. Lo had been most active ever since. He was only 67 years of age when he died.

He was one of the oldest of the Justices of the Peace in the Colony and was the recipient of a Certificate of Honour on His Majesty's birthday in 1930.

He was chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital in 1915, and has been a member of the Permanent Advisory Board ever since. He was also a member of the District Watch Committee, a member of the Permanent Board of the Po Leung Kuk, Vice-Chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Executive Committee for many years.

Mr. Lo, too, was a director of the China Light and Power and the Hongkong Construction Companies.

He is survived by four sons, Messrs. M. K. Lo, M. W. Lo, M. H. Lo and Horace Lo, all well-known in Hongkong; and five daughters, Mrs. Ho Leung, Mrs. Ho Ki, Mrs. Choa, Mrs. John Litton and Mrs. K. W. Chau.

While funeral arrangements had not been made last night, it was revealed that the service would not take place until Sunday, in any event.

JAPANESE DEFEAT

CHINESE VOLUNTEER FORCES SUCCESS
Changchun, June 29.
Chinese volunteers have captured the town of Latzekow, in Kirin

Province.
The Chinese troops, numbering about 1,000, occupied the town after they had defeated the defending force of Japanese and Manchukuo soldiers. The victors disarmed their prisoners on their surrendering.

The volunteers are commanded by Wu Yi-chen and only succeeded in capturing their objective after a fierce all-night battle in which there were numerous casualties.—United Press.

RATEABLE VALUE

ASSESSMENT OF COLONY SHOWS DECREASE

Statistics contained in the Annual Report of the Assessment for the financial year 1934-1935, issued by the Colonial Treasurer, indicate that Kowloon is slowly but surely replacing the Island as the most important part of the Colony.

For the first time in 20 years, the rateable value of the Colony shows a decrease, but this decrease applies to the Island only, the rateable value for the mainland showing substantial increases.

During the past ten years the rateable value of the Colony has increased by 74.47 per cent, and this year's decrease is the first since 1916.

This information was tabled in the Legislative Council at its last meeting.

The Rateable Value of the Colony has, as a result of the new valuation, been placed at $38,041,866, which represents a decrease of $399,417 over the rateable value for 1933-1934.

The decreased valuations occurred on the Island, the new valuation for the City of Victoria being $25,176,634; as compared with $25,668,498 last year, and for Hongkong Villages $2,883,188, as compared with $3,204,447. The total decrease in the valuation for the Island is $299,417.

Kowloon Increase.

On the other hand, Mainland figures show substantial increases in valuation, the increase in the case of Kowloon being due to the building of new shops and European flats, and in the case of New Kowloon to an increase in Chinese tenement houses in Shamshuipo and some further building at Kowloon City.

The valuation for Kowloon has increased from $5,207,351 to $8,371,033, and for New Kowloon from $1,960,977 to $2,212,151.

The decrease in the valuation of the City of Victoria is due partly to the fall in rentals following the depressed condition of trade in the Colony throughout the year, and partly to deductions made on account of water charges following the introduction of meters on the abolition of the ridge mains. Under Hongkong Villages the decrease is due for the most part to the general depression in the Colony and consequent lower rentals.

Vacant Tenements.

The number of tenements reported to be vacant average about 1,100 monthly, as compared with 439 last year. This the greatest number of vacant tenements ever reported, the next highest number being 445 in 1927-1928, and is partly due to the building activity of 1932-1933.

The fall in the rentals of Chinese tenements continues, and is becoming more general. The rents of Shops and Offices in the central part of the City are now beginning to be affected by the trade depression.

SIBERIAN MAILS.

MANCHUKUO ROUTE TO BE FOLLOWED

London, June 29. It is understood that through-running Siberian mails, via Manchukuo, will shortly be resumed by agreement between the postal authorities concerned.

The agreement does not involve major questions of Chinese Government policy towards Manchukuo.

There is reason to believe that the British Government privately made friendly representations about the postal resumption to the Chinese Government.—Reuter.

WHAT BRITISH ANALYST SAYS ABOUT 'ASPRO'

Eminent Analyst's Report

56a, Great Dover St., LONDON, S.E.1

1st October, 1924.

I have, during the past few months, made an exhaustive examination of a number of the best-known brands of Aspirin Tablets, and have, at the request of Nicholas Pty. Ltd., made a careful examination of "ASPRO." As a result of these examinations, I have to report, after 10 individual tests, I find that no single Tablet of "ASPRO" contains any trace of free Salicylic Acid.

I find the weight of the Tablets very uniform, and that they have been made by some process which, contrary to the general practice, does not cause decomposition and consequent liberation for free Salicylic Acid. All other processes of Aspirin Tablet manufacture with which I am acquainted turn out Tablets which are liable to contain, and do frequently contain, free Salicylic Acid.

Prominent Physician Praises 'ASPRO'

States That People Who Cannot Take Ordinary Aspirin Can Take "ASPRO": "ASPRO" Effective Where Others Fail.

Non-Toxic Value Appreciated
Scotland, 20th August, 1928.

Dear Sirs,

I am writing to let you know of my experience with "ASPRO." While I have made no chemical tests the CLINICAL RESULTS FULLY SUBSTANTIATE YOUR CLAIMS OF EXTREME PURITY. I have found that people who could not take ordinary ASPIRIN OWING TO THE GASTRIC UPSET IT CAUSED READILY TOLERATED "ASPRO." Also doses of "ASPRO" are effective where similar doses of Aspirin are not. It has, also, taken at night, a mild hypnotic effect which is very valuable considering its non-toxic character.

If you will send me samples for general use I shall have pleasure in distributing them to certain of my patients.

Yours faithfully, F.S. (M.B., Ch.-B.) (Name withheld for professional reasons.)

ANOTHER DOCTOR SAYS 'ASPRO' IS VASTLY SUPERIOR TO ORDINARY ASPIRIN

Cheshire, England, 7/2/29.

Dear Sirs,

In most cases I have found "ASPRO" VASTLY SUPERIOR TO ORDINARY ASPIRIN, ESPECIALLY in patients who, in addition to varying conditions for which "ASPRO" was given, also suffer from some form of digestive disturbance.

One case in particular is worthy of mention—A NURSE (age 39) engaged in public health and infant welfare work, since coming to Manchester four years ago, has suffered from sub-acute attacks of Rheumatism.

She COULD NEVER TOLERATE SALICYLATE IN THE FORM OF ASPIRIN OR IN MIXTURES. I gave her several sample boxes of "ASPRO" and she is genuinely delighted with the results, viz.:

ALLEVIATION OF PAIN, UNDISTURBED SLEEP AND COMPLETE FREEDOM FROM ALL AFTER-EFFECTS IN THE SHAPE OF DEPRESSION AND INDIGESTION. If you care to let me have samples I shall be only too pleased to distribute them.

Yours faithfully,
(M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.)

DR. DEMOLIS' CONFIRMATION EMINENT 'SWISS' ANALYSES "ASPRO"

Rue de Heuse, 4, et. boul. Georges-Favon 30, Geneva 28d. February, 1928.

"ASPRO" CERTIFICATE (Extract). I have analysed qualitatively and quantitatively the "ASPRO" Tablets. They contain NO FREE SALICYLIC ACID, and are extremely pure, answering in all respects the requirements of the Swiss Pharmacopoeia, which governs the prescription, preparation and sale of medicaments throughout the Confederation.

"ASPRO" is pure, 99.99 per cent—100 per cent pure.

(Signed) Yours very truly,
Professor Dr. L. DEMOLIS.
(This is one of the most conclusive tributes given to any medicine in the world. It amply demonstrates the claims made for "ASPRO" from time to time.)

10E/82.

The PURITY OF 'ASPRO'

The purity of "ASPRO" conforms to the standard laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. With "ASPRO" there is no free Salicylic Acid, therefore, it does not harm the heart, or have any injurious after-effects, such as palpitation, nausea, digestive or other troubles. Safeguard your health and heart by always insisting on "ASPRO."

5 MINUTES

FOR RELIEF WITH 'ASPRO'

There is nothing indefinite about "ASPRO." Its service is QUICK—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from "ASPRO," as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens nor drugs.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Nell Hamilton, who has one of the leading roles in the Paramount feature "One Sunday Afternoon" coming on Tuesday at the King's Theatre, tried thirty different trades before he finally tackled the art of acting. The picture, which was directed by Stephen Roberts, stars Gary Cooper, with Fay Wray, Frances Fuller, a new screen luminary from the Broadway stage, and Hamilton playing the featured parts. Roscoe Karns and Sam Hardy furnish the comedy slants. Hamilton's first job at the age of thirteen was wrapping up a clothing store. Later he modelled suits and ties in the same place. Hamilton's first picture was an extra in "The Scar," a film starring Kitty Gordon. Shortly after he was playing parts in "Beast of Berlin," "The Restless Sex," "Over the Top" and others.

"Men in White"
A new and remarkable screen team is playing from tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre, Clark Gable and Myrna Loy. You've known them both for some time, but you've never really known them until you see the new M-G-M film (first first together), "Men in White." In the words of a recent news dispatch from their director, Richard Boleslavsky: "They are the complement of one another. Each brings out the latent appeal of the other. Gable's extreme masculinity and the distinct femininity of Myrna Loy, amounting almost to a folio quality at times, bring to the screen one of the most romantic and dramatic film teams of the season. But romantic appeal is not the only aspect of "Men in White." It is in itself a gripping story, stark in its unveiled realism—a story of life in a great modern hospital. The fragile role of Barbara, played by lovely Elizabeth Allan, is poignant and charged with pathos. In a ringing performance she plays it to the hilt. Perhaps the chief charm of "Men in White" is its all-around cast, as fine a group of actors as any single production has ever seen. Such as Jean Hersholt, Otto Kruger, Henry Gordon, Russell Hardy, Wallace Ford, Henry B. Walthall, with superb artistry create a magic illusion that never for a moment breaks.

"Good Dame"
Sylvia Sydney and Fredric March are co-starring again for the first time since their memorable "Merrily We Go to Hell" in "Good Dame," the B. J. Schulberg-Paramount picture, showing at the King's Theatre. The result is happy. A breezy, fresh and well sustained comedy-drama stands ready for your stamp of approval. The supporting cast adds materially to the picture. Jack LaRue likable scene-stealer. Jack Burke, Noel France, Kathleen Burke, Bradley Page, Russell Hepton and William Farnum also do their bits in grand style. The love of a "good" dame for a "bad" boy. It is spiced with sparkling dialogue and amusing situations which evoke constant laughter.

"Blood Money"
Two women vie for George Bancroft's affections in "Blood Money," his new picture which opens tomorrow at the Queen's. The two actresses are Judith Anderson, New York stage star, and pretty Frances Dee, charming ingenue from Hollywood. Heretofore in his pictures Bancroft has had to battle for his woman, but in "Blood Money" he enjoys the novel experience of having two personable young ladies "go for him." The drama of "Blood Money" centres around a bail bondsman whose office on Wall Street is the real capital of the underworld. From this office mayors are named, councilmen elected, judges slipped into office, crooks helped, thieves coddled, scarlet ladies given a helping hand and society girls offered a real thrill. Bancroft has the role of the underworld king, "Bail Bond Bailey." Judith Anderson has the role of Bancroft's aide in the underworld, a clever business woman whose brain supplements that of her pals. Delightful Frances Dee is cast as a society dame who gets her thrills from consorting with underworld chieftains and doing a little "cheating" herself.

"Charlie Chan's Greatest Case"
The new Fox production depicting the latest adventures of that famous Hawaiian detective comes to the Oriental Theatre on Sunday and Monday. The picture goes to the heart of a story—a vandy different situation, and an engrossing atmosphere in which Charlie Chan solves his greatest and most intricate case. Warner Oland again portrays this bland detective whose quaint and human

NAVAL PARLEYS

FRANCE TO JOIN IN LONDON TALKS

London, June 29.
It is learned from American sources in London that the Anglo-American naval talks have terminated. No further discussions are likely until the French, Italian and Japanese delegates arrive in London. Mr. Norman Davis, America's Roving Ambassador conferred with M. Corbin, the French Ambassador, this morning with a view to preparing the way for Franco-American naval talks. The belief that the Anglo-American talks have ended is substantiated by the fact that no arrangements have been made for further meetings.

China's Interest.
London, June 29.
China's concern in the naval conversations which have been proceeding here for the past few days, was made manifest for the first time when Mr. Quo Tai-chi, the Ambassador, called upon Mr. Davis, the American representative, at 12.30 p.m. to-day. It is understood that Mr. Davis informed the Chinese Ambassador of the trend of the conversations.

France To Enter.
London, June 29.
France will enter into the naval conversations when M. Barthou and M. Pietri arrive in London on July 8. France, it is reliably learned, is intending to open a wide range of political problems, thus challenging the Japanese desire to restrict conversations to technical naval aspects.

Besides attempting to link naval limitation with land and air armaments, it is understood France plans to raise the question of Far Eastern disputes, and will also suggest Russia's admission to the talks.

The United States and British delegations will meet during the mid-week for what will probably be the last session. It is understood that Mr. Quo Tai-chi, China's Ambassador, told Mr. Norman Davis that Nanking intends to continue to resist the Japanese demands in China.

philosophy have delighted audiences for years. Heather Angel has the leading feminine role in this film. Others in the cast are Roger Imhoff, John Warburton, Walter Byron, Ivan Simpson, Virginia Cherrill, Francis Ford, Robert Warwick, Frank McGlynn, Clara Blandick, Claude King, William Stack, Gloria Roy and Cornelius Keefe.

"Female"
At the Queen's Theatre, Ruth Chatterton is giving the grandest performance of her career in "Female," her fastest and most entertaining picture. "Female" is a honey of a picture, handsomely mounted, in which the first National star fairly revels in a story the like of which has never been put on the screen. "Female" reverses the conquered female story. As the head of a big business, Chatterton beats men at their own game—that of having men play her in. Instead of winning her affections, she plays the men. In "Female" there is no trace of "Madame X" nor of "Prison Jenny." In her latest picture, Chatterton has departed with a vengeance from all other film characters, with which she has been associated in the past.

"Ever in My Heart"
Barbara Stanwyck, Warner Bros. star whose latest picture, "Ever in My Heart," has its final showings today at the Alhambra, won an unqualified popularity contest recently when members of the studio wardrobe department were asked which player they took the greatest pleasure in costuming. While Mary Francis, Ruth Chatterton, Betty Davis and others whose reputations for smartness is world wide found plenty of boosters, it was Barbara Stanwyck who received the unanimous praise of the seamstresses, because, as one expressed it, "she's so darn nice." Pressed still further, they explained that while most stars insist on having some of their own, and often complicated, ideas carried out in their clothes, Barbara Stanwyck is the easiest to suit. In "Ever in My Heart" the actress wears a score or more of beautiful gowns designed for her by Earl Luick.

ANGLO-DUTCH TRADE

NEW AGREEMENT FORESHADOWED

London, June 29.

Negotiations for a new trade agreement between Britain and the Netherlands will open at the Board of Trade on July 5.

The Dutch delegation will include Dr. Hirschfeld (Director General of Commerce and Industry), Dr. Riea (of the Ministry of Finance) and Messieurs Bonthuis and Hooft (of the Ministries of Finance and Foreign Affairs respectively), together with M. S. Jacob, Commercial Attache at the Netherlands Legation in London, and expert advisers.

In view of the opening of these negotiations it may be noted that the visible adverse balance of British trade with Holland, which stopped at £18,301,000 in 1931, when imports from that country were valued at £35,000,000, fell to £2,707,000 in 1932. In 1933, United Kingdom exports to Holland were of the value of £12,480,000, re-exports £1,975,000 and imports from Holland £18,859,004.—British Wireless.

NEW ZEALAND SHIPPING

HIT BY SUBSIDISED COMPETITION

London, June 29.

A deputation interested in New Zealand shipping problems interviewed the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas, to-day and represented to him the difficult situation of New Zealand shipping lines in the Pacific, owing to competition of subsidised shipping.

Mr. Thomas undertook to place their views before his colleagues in the Government.—British Wireless.

SUN SPOTS AND THE DROUGHT

BELIEVED TO BE THE CAUSE

MAXIMUM PHASE ENTERED

Washington, June 29.

Sun spots are held to blame for worldwide drought conditions. The spots are now entering a "maximum phase."

These swirling hurricanes on the face of the sun quite definitely affect the earth's weather but to what extent the foremost student of the phenomena, Dr. C. G. Abbot, of Smithsonian Institution, hesitates to say.

These sun spots are generally believed to be solar storms of such intensity as to defy the imagination of man. They are dark, cloud-like regions, varying from 500 to 5,000 miles in diameter. Any laymen with a piece of smoked glass may see them.

There are always a few spots on the sun. They begin to multiply every 11 years until the sun looks as though it were suffering from planetary small-pox.

The spots are now beginning to enter their maximum phase. They will speckle the sun increasingly until 1945, giving scientists more than a decade in which to study the mystery and its effect. Dr. Abbot is chary about predicting unusual weather for the next 11 years, although he firmly believes that the spots do have a direct effect upon temperatures and possibly upon atmospheric conditions.

"When the sun spots reach their greatest intensity," he said, "tem-

U.S. RAILROAD FINANCING

NEW 4 1/2 PER CENT BONDS

New York, June 29.

The Wall Street Journal states that Messrs. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the prominent bankers & railroad financiers, have placed on the market an offering of U.S. $50,000,000 Pennsylvania R.R. 50-year Bonds at 4 1/2 per cent.

This is the first major public railroad bond offering since the passage of the Securities Act and is regarded in Wall Street as an extremely bullish factor.—Per Scan, Culbertson & Fritz.

temperatures throughout the world average slightly lower—about one degree less.

He added, however, that science knows so little about the phenomena that it is difficult to attribute any specific weather developments, such as the drought, to them.—United Press.
